Fisher-Price Recalls 83 Types of Toys Because of Lead-Based Paint State Health Department Urges Parents To Take the Toys Away Immediately

BISMARCK, N.D. – The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) and Fisher-Price is recalling 83 types of toys because they are colored with lead paint, according to Sandi Washek, Lead-Based Paint Program coordinator for the North Dakota Department of Health.

The North Dakota Department of Health recommends that parents and providers take the toys away from children immediately. The recall covers plastic preschool toys sold in the United States between April 2007 and August 2007, including Dora, Elmo, Big Bird, Sponge Bob and Diego figures and accessories.

Lead is a highly toxic metal that was used for many years in products found in and around homes, such as paint and varnishes. Lead can cause a range of health effects, from behavioral problems and learning disabilities, to seizures and death. Children 6 and younger are at the most risk for health effects from lead. There have been no reports of injuries with this recall.

The recall involves various figures and toys that were manufactured between April 19, 2007, and July 6, 2007 and were sold alone or as part of sets. The model names and product numbers for the recalled toys, which are all marked with “Fisher-Price,” are listed below. The toys may have a date code between 109-7LF and 187-7LF marked on the product or packaging.
